With respect to claim 95, Paul et al disclose an implant (70,70') for implantation in a disc space between adjacent vertebrae, the implant formed of bone and comprising: a first end having a tool engagement recess and an opposite second end a first bone engaging surface and an opposite second bone engaging surface (FIG.9) a first side wall disposed between the first end and the second end and extending from the first bone engaging surface to the second bone engaging surface; a second side wall opposite the first side wall, wherein the implant has a generally rectangular cross section; as set forth in column 5, lines 8-23 and as best seen in FIG.9.

With respect to claims 96-106, Paul et al disclose all the limitations; as best seen in FIG. 9, and as set forth in column 5, lines 8-23.
